BOB

Welcome to the back of Woop Woop. Do you realize how far out you are? I mean off the highway.

BERNADETTE

It wasn't on the itinerary Bob. But I'm very glad we bumped into you.

So, what's the mechanical verdict?

BOB

Trouble. Your gas tank's chock-a-block full of crud. Travelling on a rough road on a low tank chucked it all up into the motor. Your fuel line's blocked and your injectors are stuffed.

TICK

So does that mean you can fix it?

BOB

In the short term, but it's gonna keep happening. What you blokes need is a new fuel tank.

TICK

I don't suppose you have one tucked away anywhere.

BOB

No. Sorry. I could pick one up in Coober Pedy in about a week. When do you have to be in Alice?

TICK

Six days.

BOB

Well, we can clear it out and hope for the best. You might make it. You'll never know unless you give it a go!

CYNTHIA

Refreshments! Hello ebyone. Here. I make lemonade!

BOB

That's very nice darling. Now please—

We don't get your type out here very often.

CYNTHIA

Me perform, too. I dance.

BOB

Yes. My wife used to be in the...entertainment business.

CYNTHIA

Yes. I do very special thing with little putti boula—

BOB

(Hastily) If you don't mind me asking, what kind of act do you do?

ADAM

We dress up in women's clothes and parade around on bar tops mouthing the words to other people's songs.

BOB

You mean, sort of like those "Les Girls."

TICK

You know about...?

BOB

My oath. First saw them back in Sydney before I went over to Vietnam. They were fantastic. It was a real eye opener; you'd never know they weren't real women.

TICK

Bob, you are looking at probably the most famous "Les Girl" ever.

BOB

Far out! You? A "Les Girl!" I can't believe it. Man, does that bring back a few memories or what?
